

MEXICO IS SPLIT OVER PRESIDENT

Some Opposition to Calles Remaining in Executive Chair

Mexico City, July 25.—(AP)—Conflicting reports are expected to clarify the political complications of Mexico were started today. Aaron Saez and other Obregonista leaders returned from Sonora where they attended the funeral of their assassinated chief and at once went into session with adherents of their party who had remained in Mexico City.

The object was to reach a definite understanding as to who will be acceptable to the Obregon men as provisional president.

The chances seemingly continued to favor either Governor Saez or President Calles.

President Calles, suffering from a slight cold and weary from the strain of the day and night work which he has been doing since General Obregon was killed, transacted all his business at his private residence. His associates said that he was not really ill but that the combination of a slight indisposition and the strain under which he has been laboring made it advisable for him to stay away from his office.

Mexico City, July 25.—(AP)—Obregon leaders appeared to be split today over the continuation of President Calles in office for two years as Provisional President.

Antonio Soto Y Gama, Agrarian leader, when asked if the Provisional President would be General Calles, replied:

"A constitutional President who continues in power as provisional President directly violates the constitution which prohibits reelection."

The demand has already been formulated that Calles continue in office after his term expires on December 1. Ricardo Topete, leader of the Obregon bloc in Congress which controls that body, has placed himself on record as predicting that either Calles or Aaron Saez, Governor of Nueva Leon, will carry on the government until elections can be held in 1930.

Opposed to Calles? Soto Y Gama's statement was construed in some quarters today as voicing agrarian opposition to Calles as provisional president. Calles himself apparently does not desire to continue in office.

Agrarian leaders in various parts of Mexico demand that "all labor influences" be removed from the government because of the assassination of General Alvaro Obregon. So insistent are they that Obregon's political enemies are morally responsible for the crime that they assert they do not even ask the death penalty for Jose De Leon Toral, who shot Obregon to death.

"Assassin Was Controlled" "We regard Obregon's assassin as a personage who was controlled by superior outside forces," said Aurelio Manrique, an agrarian leader, "we do not demand his death, but we do demand justice, and we believe this can be achieved most quickly by removal from the government of those labor leaders whose anti-Obregon activities created the atmosphere for the mad act of the assassin."

Innumerable rumors were current today regarding Luis Morones, former Minister of Labor, whose resignation had been demanded by the Agrarians. One was that he had escaped to the United States by airplane. Reports received in New York that he had been wounded on the Sunday before the assassination could not be verified. If any new attacks have been made on him they have been kept secret.

Small Boats Must Carry Lights For Safety Measure

Owners of power boats are contemplating filing complaint with government officials against owners of canoes and row boats on the river at night without carrying lights. Several canoes have narrowly escaped being run down or cut in two by motor boats the past few weeks, only the fact that the power craft all carry regulation lights and powerful headlights enabling the drivers to see the canoes in time to avert disaster. The federal laws provide that all boats on Rock River, which is considered a navigable stream, must carry lights at night.

ROCKFORD PLANE WAITS FAVORABLE WINDS FOR START

Expect To Take Off For Sweden Early Tomorrow Morning

Rockford, Ill., July 25.—(AP)—Adverse head winds over Canada today were shifting into more favorable conditions for a take-off early tomorrow on the proposed flight of Bert Hassell's "Greater Rockford" airplane to Stockholm, Sweden, the flier announced.

The hop-off had been set for dawn today but was postponed pending more favorable weather conditions along the route across Canada. Hassell said he would take-off without fail tomorrow if conditions continued to improve. The big plane is standing poised for the flight, completely fueled and equipped ready for a take-off at any time, the flier said.

Hassell and his co-pilot-navigator, Parker, said they were waiting for a tail-wind chiefly because their fuel supply would not hold out on the 2,100 mile hop to Greenland against adverse wind. They have a base at Greenland where they plan to light for re-fueling, hoping to make Stockholm in one more hop.

AGED TOURIST WAS MURDERED; POLICE SEEK HIS DAUGHTER

Florida Has "Hammer Murder" Mystery— Find Bloody Car

Lake City, Fla., July 25.—(AP)—A hammer murder which had for its victim G. W. Simmons, aged tourist of Steubenville, Ohio, today confronted Columbia County authorities while officers over the state were on the lookout for Simmons' daughter and son-in-law who were seen with him last.

Sheriff W. B. Douglas, piecing together fragments of stories brought in by his deputies, surmised that Simmons' skull was crushed with a hammer during a struggle in a moving automobile on the outskirts of Lake City, and his body thrown into a clump of bushes by the roadside where it was found.

FIND BLOODY CAR

Jacksonville, Fla., July 25.—(AP)—A blood stained automobile, containing a woman's hat, and a description of the couple were the only clues local authorities had today in their search for Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Booth of Steubenville, Ohio, wanted in connection with the death of Mrs. Booth's 78-year-old father, G. W. Simmons, whose body was found near a highway at Lake City early yesterday.

A new sedan which police said answered the description of the car driven by the Booths when they visited Simmons in a Lake City tourist camp Monday night, was found on streets here yesterday morning.

Detectives have maintained a constant watch over the machine, but no one has claimed it.

Witnesses said they saw a man and woman leave the car early yesterday, stand on a street corner for a few minutes and then enter a restaurant.

Were Without Funds. Police said several persons reported they overheard a conversation between the couple during which the woman pleaded with her companion to leave the city, but he declined, saying they were penniless and did not have sufficient money to buy gasoline.

Police also received a report from an operator of a filling station near Lake City that as an automobile passed along the highway he heard cries of a man calling for police and screaming "murder."

A coroner's jury viewed the body of Simmons at Lake City late yesterday and adjourned to meet again tomorrow.

HAD CASH WITH HIM

Steubenville, O., July 25.—(AP)—Mrs. M. M. Newburn and Mrs. I. D. Bucoy, daughters of D. I. Simmons, killed near Lake City, Fla., with a hammer, today stated their father had sold quite a large amount of valuable real estate before leaving for Florida with his granddaughter, Mrs. E. L. Booth and her husband, Mrs. Newburn said she was unable to give the exact amount of money received but said it was "considerable" and that her father took the entire profits in cash. She said her father had made a will prior to leaving here, but was unable to say who was the beneficiary.

The granddaughter, who is 18 years old, Mrs. Newburn said, was a favorite of him. She was married to Booth a short time before starting for Florida, the trip there being the couple's honeymoon.

ANNIVERSARY OF BALFOUR BIRTH HONORED TODAY

Distinguished Statesman Guest at Banquet in London

London, July 25.—(AP)—Great Britain celebrated today the eightieth birthday of one of her most distinguished statesmen, the Earl of Balfour.

Lord Balfour's public service goes back 54 years for he entered the House of Commons in 1874 and he is one of the few great survivors of the Victorian era. The only other statesman of outstanding eminence in the period alive today is the Earl of Rosebery.

Earl Balfour is a member of the cabinet today being Lord President of Council. Notwithstanding the throat affection which laid him aside during the winter and spring he is again normally active. When he attended the luncheon yesterday to celebrate the opening of the new quarters of the British Academy of which he is president he walked through the streets to the affair rather than ride and swung along briskly with an energy which many younger men might envy.

The luncheon yesterday was partly in honor of the aged statesman's birthday and the Prince of Wales, who is on terms of intimate friendship with Earl Balfour, paid him graceful compliments to which Lord Balfour responded with a lively speech.

As a tribute in appreciation of his services to the state and as evidence of their personal esteem, his friends in the house of Lords and Commons are presenting Earl Balfour with an expensive motor car as a birthday gift.

FLOYD THOMPSON WANTS TO FIGHT FOR THE FARMERS

Is Opposed To Bovine Tuberculosis and The Corn Borer

McLeansboro, Ill., July 25.—(AP)—A new kind of farm relief was promised by Floyd E. Thompson, Democratic candidate for Governor in a speech today.

"If the farmers stop the waste and stealing that has been going on," he said, "they will relieve themselves of an enormous tax burden. They must vote to oust the ring that has been in control of their affairs in the state house for many years."

Against Swamp Drainage. Attacking the policy of encouragement of the reclamation of arid and swamp lands, the Democratic nominee said that government funds should instead be spent for the reforestation of worn out farm lands.

He advocated the closest cooperation between the national and state departments of agriculture, the college of agriculture of the University of Illinois and the farm organizations. Agricultural fairs with competitive exhibition of livestock and other farm products and boys' and girls' club work were praised by Mr. Thompson.

Bovine Tuberculosis. "Every person residing in this state is directly interested in the eradication of bovine tuberculosis," he stated. "And the expense attending such eradication should be borne by the state and national governments. It is not a county problem and the counties should not be asked upon to share any of the expense. As Governor, I shall strive to free Illinois from the menace of this disease within two years and shall insist upon payment of indemnity on the basis of actual value, for all livestock ordered slaughtered by the state because of the disease."

No Corn Borers Allowed. Mr. Thompson also pledged himself to use every practical means to prevent the European corn borer from entering the state.

The speech today was delivered here the candidate explained, because it is the birthplace of his mother, Sarah Edward Thompson, who was present at the meeting.

Springfield Man Killed In Brawl In A Roadhouse

Springfield, Ill., July 25.—(AP)—Claiming self defense as his motive for the shooting of James Lanier, 42, in a roadhouse brawl here Monday night, Joe Flowers, Springfield restaurant owner, surrendered last night to await a coroner's investigation.

Witnesses said that the two threatened to kill each other, after a row over a girl.

Flowers, however, claimed that Lanier was abusing a girl and at his attempt to stop the proceedings, Lanier became incensed and followed Flowers to his home.

There, Flowers said, Lanier drew a knife. Flowers said he then drew his gun to scare Lanier, and then shot to protect himself.

WELDING MAKES FIRES

Dixonites who have been riding on the highways south of the city the past few evenings have wondered what cause the flares of bluish light which could be seen at intervals. It has developed that these flares are caused by electric welding of rails on the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, which work is done nights because of the heat of the days and also because of the heavy traffic over the line during the daylight hours.

The reflection of the intense light which accompanies the electric welding operations can be seen for nearly a mile from the scene of the work.

The officers of the local company are highly elated over the response to the call for enlistments and it is expected that a full strength company of 60 men will go into camp Saturday. The company is meeting each evening at the Armory Hall, formerly Downing's hall for drill and are receiving their equipment. Captain Sherwood Dixon announced today that there is still room for additional enlistments.

The company is not completely equipped and another consignment of uniforms was received the first of the week, which was issued out to the members last evening. Additional equipment is on the road and it is hoped that it will arrive in ample time to be issued before the company leaves for encampment.

SMITH WAITS FOR HOOVER SPEECH TO DELIVER HIS OWN

Democratic Nominee to Be Notified on August the 22nd.

Albany, N. Y., July 25.—(AP)—Governor Smith has decided to let his Republican opponents fire the first shot of the campaign.

His official notification has been sent to the evening of Wednesday, August 22. Until then he intends to hold his drive for the presidency in abeyance.

The date for the formal launching of the Democratic nominee's campaign comes eleven days after the Hoover notification in California, and four days after the scheduled acceptance by Curtis of Kansas of the Republican vice presidential nomination.

Although his plans call for an unusually late start of campaigning and give his foe the jump, Smith is satisfied. It is the way he prefers to start the battle, and he is confident he will be able to square the count as soon as he sets forth his views on campaign issues.

A time for the notification of Senator Robinson, Smith's running mate, has not been determined, and until this is done, the scope of the speech making activities of the Democratic nominees will remain in doubt. It is expected, however, that both will be on the road by Labor Day.

Will Broadcast Speech. The Smith notification ceremony will take place on the east steps of the capitol, just outside the windows of the executive offices where the nominee is putting in his fourth term as Governor. It will begin at 7 p. m., eastern daylight time, and will be broadcast by a nation wide radio network, embracing at least ninety stations.

The Governor is expected to spend several weeks putting together and revising his acceptance speech, and before it is whittled into final form he probably will seek the advice of a number of party leaders. This week end he plans to have a conference with Governor Ritchie, of Maryland.

FEAR FOR STUDENTS EXPLORING CANADA: POLICE SEEK THEM

University of Iowa Boys Are Looked For By Mounted Police

Winnipeg, Man., July 25.—(AP)—Conflicting reports as to the plight of the geological expedition of four University of Iowa students into the wilds of northern Saskatchewan came out of the north country today.

The latest reports from The Pas, Man., declared earlier stories of the inadequate supplies of the four boys to be untrue. This information was given by Arthur Jan, a trader of Pelican Narrows, far to the north of The Pas, who said he had met the expedition and found them well provisioned and well provided with clothes and equipment.

J. E. Sinclair, pioneer northland prospector, however, said at Prince Albert, Sask., that he had met the boys near Rainbow Lake and found them without money either to buy provisions or hire a guide.

Determined To Go On. They were determined to press on, Sinclair said, and appeared to have a good knowledge of the country.

The expedition, which is headed by John D. Fuller of Keokuk, Ia., proposed to devote three months to a thorough exploration of hitherto unmapped areas in the northern cone of the Canadian Rockies and doing sketches. In addition to Fuller the other members of the expedition are Peter Boddum, Crystal Lake, Ia., Gordon Armstrong, Britt, Ia., and Max J. Kane, Iowa City.

Orders have been sent to all Royal Northwest Mounted Police to intercept the party and return it to safety. This action was ordered when Iowa relatives of the boys asked aid from the government in rescuing them.

STERLING MAN IN SUICIDE ATTEMPT BUT LOSES NERVE

Slashes Wrist in Rockford Hotel Then Calls For Help

Lloyd Ramsey, aged 32, of Sterling, a veteran of the World War, attempted to end his life in a room at the Hayes hotel in Rockford late Tuesday afternoon, but after he had inflicted a wicked cut in his left wrist with a broken water glass, his nerve failed him, and he hurried down stairs from his room to the office, where he asked Jesse Newcomb, proprietor of the Hayes hotel and formerly connected with a Dixon hotel, to help him.

"I can't go through with it," he gasped to Newcomb, as he rushed down the steps with blood trickling from the gash on his wrist, "Help me."

Police were called at the time a physician was summoned, and after the young man had been given medical attention he was taken to the Rockford city jail where he was booked as insane, the police finding no indication that he had been drinking.

Discharged from Asylum. It is declared by friends of the suffering man that only a few weeks ago he was released from the state hospital for the insane at East Moline, to which he had been committed from Sterling several months ago. He was declared by the state hospital officials at the time of his release, to have been entirely cured of the mental affliction which had been the cause of his commitment to the institution, and shortly after his release he married one of the nurses in the state hospital and returned to Sterling with his bride, establishing their home at 1104 Second avenue in that city.

Ramsey told Landlord Newcomb that he had been suffering from acute nervous trouble for the past eight years, and he declared that he had made previous attempts at suicide by slashing his wrists.

He went to Rockford Monday in search of work, he said, and engaged a room at the Hayes hotel there that afternoon. Hotel attaches had observed nothing in his demeanor Monday or Tuesday to indicate that he was not normal and they had no intimation of his plans until he half walked, half staggered down the steps after his futile attempt to reach a vital artery with the thick jagged piece of glass which he held in his hand.

He said over forty girls answered Tuesday evening, within a short time after The Telegraph was on the streets, and all of this morning he was besieged by fair suitors for the vacant place.

THE ART OF LIVING
To touch the cup with
Eager lips and taste,
Not drain it;
To woo and tempt and
Court a bliss and
Not attain it;
To fondle and caress a joy,
Yet hold
It lightly,
Lest it become necessity and Cling
Too tightly;
To see the sun sink in the West without Regretting;
To hail his advent in the East, the night
Forgetting;
To have enough to spare, to Know the joy
Of giving;
To thrill response to every
Sweet of life—
Is living.

The WOMAN'S DAY by ALLENE SUGGER

Concerning this talking baby of Birmingham, whose name, for some reason, known only to her parents, perhaps only to one of them, is Yu daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Scotts, is supposed to have the vocabulary of a child of six. What's more, she uses it. At one week she is supposed to have said "Eat! Eat! Fat!" At two weeks, "Daddy!" etc., until now she can emit such examples of purest diction as "cats is swell."

WHO WANTS HER?

Somehow it all smacks suspiciously to me of a maternal reluctance to bear the pang of jealousy engendered by the far-flung fame of the three-year-old who smokes black stogies. And supposing the child does say, "eat, eat, eat," what of it? What parent is going to be jealous of that? If there's one thing a parent knows it's that babies small children, growing boys and girls, and on up to the time papa stops paying the grocery bills, "eat, eat, eat," but who wants a child to rub it in at the age of one week? Seriously speaking, why do parents want prodigies? Abnormal precocity is as frightening a thing as subnormality.

A KINGLY GESTURE

King Alexander of Serbia is about to adopt two sons of Paul Raditch, Croatian deputy slain in the Serbian Parliament, current report has it. Which only proves again the kinship twist kings and other human beings. The impulse of sympathy and protection of the weak is as kindly as it is ordinary, and vice versa.

PARIS SHOWS

Even Paris, long regarded, perhaps inaccurately, as one spot on earth where "anything goes," is getting alarmed about the growing immorality of the French stage. When the fall season opens the police are to attend all first-night performances, scrutinize the costumes, lines, sets, and actions for possible immorality, and either permit the play to go on with or without alteration, or suspend it entirely.

STUPID

Thus does the stupidity of censorship manifest itself once more. Why is a policeman or several of them, any better judge of what is good for me than I am for myself? If he has sufficient background to be able to prescribe for all of us, he wouldn't be a policeman. Censorship is a subjective, not an objective job. The job is to somehow give people such chances at the real beauty of life that nothing external of ugliness or sin can touch them!

LOVE WINS

A certain fair maid of Vienna was much loved by a normally insignificant young man. She told him that she never could be his until he amounted to something, got a job where he could wear a uniform, or something great like that. The young man bought a mechanic's outfit and began tampering with the electric lights in the fair maiden's neighborhood. He was arrested, though his true story won his release. The lover's troubles win over the whole world anytime!

PEGGY'S BOOK

Peggy Hopkins Joyce is about to write a book. Peggy may learn, though, as many a person has learned who tries to write a book that mere multitude of experiences is nothing worth writing about it. It's what one's own soul has done with those experiences. We may mean but we can hardly believe that Peggy has done enough with her experience to make it worth our while to read her book.

Bridge Made Easy

(Abbreviations: A—ace; K—king; Q—queen; J—jack; X—any card lower than 10.)

DOUBLE AND REDOUBLE—The only occasions in which the partner of the doubler may remain adamant and refuse to bid is when holding a hand that is so strong that the doubler must be set, as when holding over a suit bid of diamonds the following hand:

Spades X
Hearts X X
Diamonds K J 10 X X X X
Clubs X X X
Or over a no trump bid when holding a strong hand as:
Spades Q J 10
Hearts A J X
Diamonds K J 10
Clubs K 10 X X

A business double is made for the purpose of setting opponents. Its object is to collect penalties. It is generally inadvisable to make a business double unless you are reasonably certain of setting by two tricks. In determining the possible number of tricks you can make take the following facts into consideration:

- 1—If you hold a freak hand, your opponents may hold a freak distribution.
- 2—If you are blank in a suit opponents may be blank.
- 3—If partner has made a pre-emptive bid you may not possibly make a defensive trick out of partner's hand.
- 4—If partner has made a jump assist, count the hand for little defensive value.
- 5—A two-suited hand is a danger signal for a double.
- 6—If opponents may shift to another suit do not double unless you can double the new suit.
- 7—If partner has made a secondary bid, do not expect to find any defensive values in partner's hand.
- 8—If opponents have a frame and your score is clear, it is more advisable to set by 200 points than to make the frame. If the score is frame-frame, bid for rubber unless you can set by 400 points.

Re-doubles may be either business or informative. A business re-double should seldom be made and then only if you are absolutely certain of your ground—certain you are in the position to safely double any rescue bid that may be made by opponents. Re-doubling is to be discouraged as a rule.

The informative re-double is made on two occasions, illustrations thereof being as follows:
1—First hand bids no trump, second hand doubles. You as third hand is holding a no-trumper may re-double to inform partner of your strength.
2—First hand bids no trump, second and third hands pass. Fourth hand doubles. First hand re-doubles. This is an S. O. S. to declarer's partner of the great necessity of making a declaration.

Farm Revolt Leader Into Camp

When Herbert Hoover's Special train traveled across Nebraska, the Republican presidential nominee was accompanied by Gov. Adam McMullen (right), who was one of the leaders in the movement to send an army of farmers to the Kansas City G. O. P. convention to protest against Hoover's nomination. McMullen is now in the Hoover camp, it would seem from this picture taken by an NEA staff photographer at North Platte, Neb.

Short Interviews With Famous Women

"Fifty years from now there will be no homely women," said Helena Rubinstein, famous beauty specialist. "Women are now intelligent about beauty, and are bringing up their daughters to observe rules of health and beauty. They understand that the foundation of all beauty is health, and that if they keep their health, they can keep their looks." "And not only are they interested in their faces, as they used to be, but in their bodies as well. They take time for gymnastics, sport and rest, and they realize they must control their nerves and their emotions if they are to remain beautiful." "The college girl is doing much to bring on the age of beauty, Madame Rubinstein believes. "Because," she points out, "she does not follow the accepted styles and fads, but has definite ideas of her own. She believes in personality and is anxious to study her own type and make the most of it." "And the more she uses the inside of her head, the more capable she is of using the outside to advantage." "She applies all the knowledge she acquires to herself as well as to her career. And she realizes that efficiency begins with her appearance. "With her the pursuit of beauty is not only a manifestation of vanity, but of her will to succeed. She is setting a new and fascinating pace for women."

French Flight to U. S. is Abandoned

Paris, July 25—(AP)—The Havas News Agency announced yesterday that it had been officially decided to abandon the trans-Atlantic flight of Lieutenant Paulin Paris, now at Horta, in the Azores, from France to the United States.

Lieutenant Paris has been ordered back home because of the motor trouble which developed on the latter part of his hop to the Azores. It was said at the Ministry of Marine that since the voyage was interrupted by the motor difficulty, the object of the flight could not be attained. Lieutenant Paris started, not on a sporting flight, it was explained, but on a serious experiment to determine whether a mail route by way of the Azores and Bermuda was practicable.

The delay en route, in official opinion, spoiled the experiment and consequently the French cruiser at Horta has been ordered to bring the plane back to France. It is probable that the flight will be begun over again later.

SYNDICATES OF CRIME BACKED BY BOOTLEGGERS

Bribery, Corruption and Other Crime Finances By Liquor

Seattle, July 25—(AP)—With the picture of an alleged criminal syndicate in many United States urban centers dominated and financed by the bootlegging industry before them today, delegates to the American Bar Association convention planned to head the annual address of Silas H. Strawn, President and other official reports and elect members.

Growing lack of confidence in the integrity of all public officials because of "bribery and corruption in public office" by bootleg money was depicted in a report read last night by Jacob M. Lashly, President of the St. Louis Bar Association, in the absence of his brother Arthur V. Lashly, St. Louis, the author.

Lashly, whose report was based on a symposium of opinions of officials, published and law enforcement agents in many representative large cities, placed "the real problem of crime and failure of justice in many parts of the country" directly at the door of the bootlegging industry. By-products of the illegal industry, the drug, bombing and hi-jacking gangs, often utilize their spare moments in influencing elections by terrorism, and in extortion schemes, Lashly said.

THE YOSEMITE THREAT.

The Yosemite National Park, in California, is one of the most beautiful and popular of our national monuments. More than half a million people visited it last summer; the number this year will be greater.

Yet, contrary to popular belief, not all of the land there is national property. There are more than 11,000 acres of privately owned land within the park; these lands can be cut over, used for hot dog stands or otherwise used so as to mar the natural beauty of the park.

The National Park Service wants to make this private acreage national property. It can do so by trading to the owners certain other park lands and paying about $2,000,000 in cash. An act of Congress is necessary before this can be done. Congress must act at the next session, for lumbering operations are expected to be started next year.

It is highly important that that act go through Congress. If you want to see the Yosemite preserved unspoiled, write your congressman at once.

ARCTIC PROSPERITY.

Twelve decades ago, when the Alaskan gold rush was at its height, the town of Fairbanks, Alaska, was enjoying boom times. It had a population of 20,000, and was sending back to the United States a steady stream of gold.

The boom passed, and Fairbanks dropped to a tenth of its former population.

Now, however, according to a statement from the Department of the Interior, Fairbanks is coming back as a producer of gold. More than $10,000,000 has been spent in preparation for large-scale hydraulic mining. Fairbanks has doubled and is still rising; the Alaska railroad has shown its first profit.

The Interior Department estimates that the new mining activities will continue for at least 25 years. The result, it believes, will be a great development of Alaska's other resources. Prosperity is about to return to the Arctic circle.

A THOUGHT ABOUT FARMERS.

The American farmer has not been enjoying the extreme peak of prosperity in recent years. That fact has surely been drummed home during the last few months.

Yet one is tempted to wonder, sometimes, whether the American farmer is not, after all, considerably better off than the farmers of other lands.

The Gleaner Combine Harvester Corp., of Independence, Mo., recently sent a solid train of 125 cars, all loaded with combine harvesters, to dealers in the Nebraska cities of Sidney, Ogallala and Chappell. The entire shipment was worth considerably more than $200,000.

Farmers abroad may be doing very well. But they at least aren't buying $200,000 loads of farm machinery at one time.

Experiments to produce synthetic milk are being carried on by several eastern scientists. They might ask some of the farmers how they mix theirs.

The Irish Free State has signified willingness to adopt Secretary Kellogg's pact outlawing war. Now you can expect Al Smith to announce that he's a dry, after all.

"Louvain Library Wrecked Again," says a newspaper headline. What Belgium seems to need is a Union of Non-wreckers of the Louvain Library.

The word shoppe is having a vogue just now, it appears. The only sign we haven't seen to date is "Ye Olde Petrol Shoppe," but we're still hoping.

A promoter has bought John D. Rockefeller's birthplace and will move it to Coney Island for exhibition as an object lesson. Folk seeking object lessons probably can find a healthy one whenever they pass a gasoline station, too.

A man fined $1 in a New York court for a traffic violation had only a $5000-bill and a $1000-bill on his person. Probably he was just on his way to buy a couple of sandwiches and a glass of ginger ale at a night club.

Americans, per capita, are 95 cents poorer this year than they were last, the treasury tells us. If we could find the person who got our 96 cents, we'd gladly send him the other four.

THE TINYMITES

STORY & ILL COCHRAN—PICTURES & KNICK

The Tinymites were much surprised, for gradually they realized that from the crock the fairy queen had floated into air. They'd fallen when the cork popped out, and when the queen appeared, no doubt, 'twas hard for all the Tinies to be sure that she was there.

"Say, am I dreaming?" Clowny said, "or am I funny in the head? I think I see a little girl, who came out of that crock." "No, you're not dreaming," said the maid. "I'm really here. Don't be afraid." And then she smiled, while brushing back a little curly lock.

"I've been within that crock about a year and my I'm glad I'm out. You little lads were very kind to work and set me free. Now, in return I'll gladly do most anything I can for you. Just name a wish you have in mind, and you will promptly see."

The Tinymites all thought a while. Then Clowny broke into a smile.

"Well, maybe you could bring us food to fill us up," said he. "Of course I can," the fairy said. She waved her wand above her head, and soon a table popped in sight, as cute as it could be.

One Tiny jumped, and waved his hat. "Well, goodness, how did you do that? Where did the table come from? You are wonderful, I think." "Oh, you will see a whole lot more," the fairy said, "I have in store a very tasty dinner and some nice cold milk to drink."

She promptly waved her wand again, and said some mystic words, and then some food and drink appeared upon the table very quick. This gave the bunch a big surprise. Like saucers were their little eyes, and Scouty promptly shouted, "That is quite a clever trick."

(The Tinymites enjoy their dandy meal in the next story.)

UNIQUE COMPARISON OF HOOVER AND SMITH

Both Like Baseball and Radio, Starched Collars, Cigars and White Shirts

Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith have a number of things in common. Each is 54 years old. Both were born in poor and humble surroundings, both lost their fathers during boyhood, both have blue eyes, both are family men with children, both are loved by their professional associates. Hoover's intimates call him "Chief"; Smith's know him as "Al."

Both are radio and baseball fans. Each wears a large collar and comparatively low shoes. Each—despite the legend of Smith's brown derby and the fact that neither would ever be taken for Beau Brummel—is particular about his personal appearance. Their clothes are always pressed and some one sees to it that their hats, suits, shirts and ties match in harmonious colors.

Both wear starched white collars, except in the case of Smith for sport dress. Hoover's collars are notoriously high; Smith's are always low. Both wear plain white soft shirts. Smith likes striped ties, bow or four-in-hand, and Hoover wears rather quiet four-in-hands, of gray, brown or blue.

Hoover worked his way through Leland Stanford. Smith worked while attending parochial school. Each is of a religious faith never before represented in the White House. For further particulars read these tables:

COAST GUARD IS OFF FOR STUDY OF BIG ICEBERG

Source of Great Icebergs of Atlantic Object of Search

BY JOHN B. KNOX

Associated Press Feature Editor

Boston. (AP)—Lonely lands and mysterious uncharted seas have called a little 125-foot craft and a score of men away on a mission of adventure in Greenland and Labrador waters.

The . Marion expedition named for the U. S. S. Marion is now faring northward in that little vessel, seeking knowledge in the interest of science and humanity. It is sent by the United States Coast Guard.

The adventurers expect to see a 33-foot tide racing at seven knots between the forbidding headlands of Hudson Strait. They will cruise over the sound out ocean depths where 50,000 square miles of seabottom is uncharted, where the trough drops down three miles, where ships have mysteriously disappeared, possibly on jagged, unknown reefs.

They hope to see icebergs falling with thunderous roar from Greenland glaciers. They may sail through menacing field ice. They hope to solve the mystery of the open water of Baffin Bay and to learn about the warm current that makes habitable the west coast of Greenland. They may happen upon new fishing banks of broad economic importance.

Their primary object, however, will be study of the icebergs. The expedition, headed by Lieut. Comm. Edward H. Smith, hopes to reveal for the first time the uncharted and shrouded paths these white monsters follow from the time they break away from northern glaciers until they appear in the fogs of the Grand Banks.

Every 25 miles thermometers capable of sustaining ten tons of pressure will be lowered on cables to various depths. Simultaneously special bottles will capture samples of water for analysis. Samples of mud and ooze will be taken from the bottom thousands of feet under water, which may reveal geological secrets hidden for ages.

Two simple but all-important factors, temperature and salinity of the water at various depths, studied during the 4,000-mile cruise between Labrador and Greenland, will form the basis of current maps of the entire region. These will tell the whole story of the drift of icebergs. N. G. Ricketts, second in command, and Lieut. Commander Smith, an oceanographer, will cooperate in this work.

Among the incidental results of the expedition may be a solution of an aged-old mystery. Even in coldest winters an area in Baffin Bay has remained free of ice and thus gained the name of "North Water." Common belief attributes this condition to a branch of the Gulf Stream which thousands of miles away, is supposed to dive beneath the surface of the North Atlantic to emerge in Baffin Bay. Temperature readings may definitely reveal whether or not such a current sweeps along the favored West Coast of Greenland toward Baffin Bay.

The fathometer, a new invention, may reveal new fishing banks. And should such conditions be reported as favorable and worthy of commercial enterprise, distant regions may be opened by the opening of summer ports on the southwest shores of Hudson Strait.

The crew was selected for hardiness, seamanship and general excellence from a large number of volunteers in the coast guard service. The ship is built to be more seaworthy than the largest liners, is driven by twin Diesel oil engines, and could cruise to Europe and back without refueling.

Lieut. Commander Smith expects to be back in Boston early in September.

Food is essential to existence. It rebuilds tissues and gives energy. In order to do this it must be digested. It is taken into the mouth and chewed. Immediately saliva is secreted which carry on the process, continued throughout the bowel.

good food for adults and they should drink more of it.

Water is also necessary. It replaces water lost in various ways from the body and serves as a lubricant for the intestinal tract. It is essential that it be pure.

Avoid food that is too hot or too cold, eat moderately, and masticate thoroughly, for mouth and stomach digestion are closely linked together. Stomach digestion may be delayed by hasty eating, weariness, worry, fear, and anxiety. A short rest before and after meals is advisable in delayed digestion.

Do not waste food. Do not buy a poor quality or too much. Cook carefully and serve tastefully. Avoid monotony in the character of food and be sure that it is eaten in pleasant and congenial surroundings. Summer and winter diets vary. In summer avoid heat producing foods, but in winter we need them to replace the heat lost.

Form dietary habits while the mind is in a plastic state. Constipation can be largely controlled by food habits. Constipation disturbs the whole balance of digestion and health. It is essential not only that we eat the proper food, but that we be regular and unburied in our time of bowel evacuation.

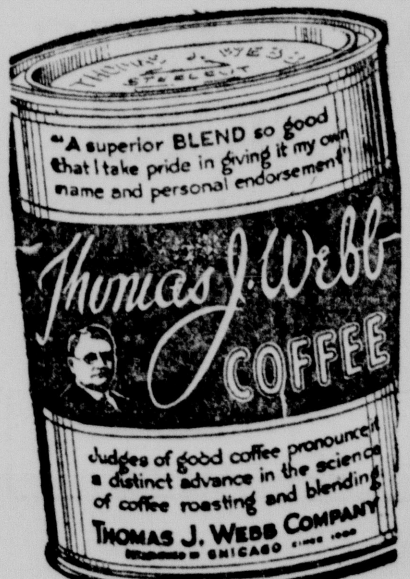

Our ancestors followed pastoral pursuits. Their simple food, outdoor life, and muscular activity kept them fit. Today engineering has revolutionized our existence. Many foods are ready prepared for us. These foods and the delicatessen shop tend to produce in the consumer a listless form of housekeeping. Lessened health values may exist if inferior qualities of foods are purchased.

HAWAIIAN PLANTATIONS LURE FILIPINO "BOYS"

Manila. (AP)—Like the Chinese of yore, young Filipino sugar plantation workers returning from Hawaii pay the ships' doctors to keep them well. The price is a dollar a head, but prevention against sea-sickness is not guaranteed.

Filipinos go to the Hawaiian islands in great numbers. To get their steamship passage paid both ways they must remain three years. While they are working on the plantations they are allowed but half their pay until the time limit is up. Then they are given a ticket back to Manila, or its equivalent in cash.

It has been estimated that of those who go to Hawaii only about a third return. The others drift to the Pacific coast, Filipino "boys" being in great demand in Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, San Francisco

CORN PROSPECTS
IMPROVED DURING THE LAST MONTH

Frequent Rains Hindered
the Spring-sown
Grains, However

Springfield, Ill., July 25—(AP)—Corn prospects in Illinois improved in the last three weeks, a joint report of the state and federal departments of agriculture said here today. However, favorable corn weather has somewhat reduced prospects for spring sown grains in several central counties.

A. J. Surratt, agricultural statistician, prepared the report. It was as follows:

"Frequent rains during the first week of the month hindered grain harvest, haying and corn cultivation work over most of the state. Excepting scattered days of excessive heat, farm work has made fairly good progress since then. Grain harvest ranges, from completed in the south to just starting in some of the more northern counties and is a little later than usual, due to slow growth of crops earlier in the season. Farm reserves of old corn and oats are small. Pastures are fair to good and livestock condition reports are above average. Cattle and sheep numbers on farms compare favorably with those of a year ago, but a decrease of about 10 per cent is reported in the number of hogs. Farm labor is satisfactory.

"Illinois corn is up to average or better in the central and northern counties, or the main corn belt of the state, where most fields have been laid by and are fairly clean. Conditions are uneven in the southern third of the state, due to excessive wet condition and delayed cultivation in June. Early fields are beginning to tassel generally. Stands largely range from 1 to 5 feet high in the south and from 2 1-2 to 5 feet high over the central and northern areas. There is some unevenness in the latter areas, due to damage by grubs, storms or from water in low spots.

"Winter wheat harvest is completed in two-thirds of the state and underway in the north. This crop was largely made ahead of the hot weather, with conditions very favorable for a good fill. State crop is below average but much better than earlier indications. A fair crop in the upper west central area and unevenly to poor elsewhere is reported. Spring wheat prospect is fair in the north but has suffered severe damage from scab in many of the central and upper central counties which have a larger acreage of this crop than usual this season. Oats and barley prospect is little changed from that of July 1. Improvement since the first of the month in the south and some northern counties has been partially offset by unfavorable hot weather for spring sown grains in some of the central and east central areas. Oats well filled and a good crop with yields above straw indication in the southern half of the state and ranging from only fair to good in the central and northern areas.

"Haying is under way generally. State crop will be short, prospect for second cutting of alfalfa is better than the first. Soybean acreage heavily increased this season and a larger acreage than usual will be cut for hay. Soybeans are getting off to a favorable start in the central and northern counties.

"Tree fruit prospects vary and are not quite up to average. Condition of apples reported at 49 per cent, peaches 36 per cent, pears 43 per cent on July 1. Grapes are a favorable crop quite generally."

THE SEAT OF TROUBLE

It might be a good idea to save today's puzzle until you start out driving with the BACK SEAT driver in your family—it might keep "her" occupied during part of the trip, at least. Par. 8 is four and one solution is on page 9.

THE RULES

1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2.—You can change only one letter at a time.

3.—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.

4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 9.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Facing possibly the crucial test of the campaign, the St. Louis Cardinals have started their second eastern invasion with a victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and stretched their lead over the field in the National League race to four and a half games.

If the Cardinals can repeat the sensational drive they made through eastern opponents on their first swing around the Atlantic seaboard, here appears little chance that any rival can overtake them. In their first eastern trip the Cardinals won eleven games and lost two.

Home runs decided the issue at Brooklyn yesterday when the Cards tossed out a 2 to 1 victory over the Robby's struggling Dodgers. Pete was in fine form but Jim Bottomley's 21st homer of the season and Chick Hefey's fifteenth sent Jess to the showers.

The Reds moved to within a game of the idle Cubs by taking the hills into camp, 5 to 1, Eppa Rixey holding the Quakers to six scattered hits.

Back on his home lot John Moraw shook up the New York Giants' batting order and Larry Anton turned in a 6 to 3 victory

Bill Roper, Princeton football coach, and Howard Jones, Southern California football coach, headed the delegation. Coolidge is shown here with Roper (left) and Jones (right).

Jack Russell and the Boston Red Sox would have turned back the New York Yankees, American League champions, for the second day in a row, had their battle at Boston ended in the eighth inning. At the close of that frame Russell had outpitched Herb Pennock and the Sox were leading by 3 to 1. In the ninth, however, six hits, a sacrifice fly and a stolen base gave the Yankees four runs and the old ball game, 5 to 3.

TUNNEY STRONGER AND FASTER THAN EVER, HE STATES

Will Fly to New York
Tomorrow: Says He is Sure to Win

BY WILLIAM R. KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Speculator, N. Y., July 25—(AP)—For three months Gene Tunney has toiled through a most rigorous training season and now, thanks to his own efforts alone, he is physically and mentally perfect for the fray with his rugged New Zealand challenger tomorrow night.

Though Tunney has fought but once since 1926, when he wrested his title from Jack Dempsey, to Heeneys fourteen bouts in the same space of time, he will enter the ring the better boxer of the two. He has probably gained a fistic science during his long lay off, for he has always been a close student of his trade.

Champ is Confident.
Tunney claims he has never been stronger, that he is punching harder and he has confidently predicted that he will defeat Heeneys, probably by a knockout.

He completed his ring practice yesterday afternoon by going two rounds with each of two sparring partners. He worked so fast against them that they appeared clumsy and awkward.

"I am ready," Tunney said when he left the ring. "Heeneys is a rugged foe but I have complete confidence in my own ability. I am better than I was for Jack Dempsey last year."

Tunney will take off from Lake Pleasant tomorrow morning in a dual-motored Sikorsky amphibian on a flight of New York where he will weigh in at the Madison Square Garden at 2 p. m.

Will Fly to Fight.
Though most of Tunney's advisers and thousands of his well wishers have pleaded with him to try a more commonplace means of traveling, he has remained obstinate.

His reason he said, was to get a good night's sleep in familiar surroundings on the night before the fight and also to shorten the trip down to New York from seven to two hours.

Unlike most boxers, Tunney has not become ill-tempered and nervous with the end of his training.

ure of Dr. Otto Peltzer, German champion, to recover from a "injury, thus apparently removing another double threat from the American path.

Nurmi's tentative program is to run in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters and the steeplechase, pairing in all three with his countryman and rival, Willie Ritola.

Wide is slated to make his big effort to upset the Finns in the 5,000 meters where Leo Lemond of the Boston A. A. Macauley Smith of Yale, and Dave Abbott of the University of Illinois, three youngsters, carry America's banner against the Scandinavian lers.

As a result, Hahn's chief opposition in the middle distance test slumps from Great Britain and France. The British threat is Douglas Lowe, 800 meter champion in 1924 and from France comes Seraphin Martin, who turned in a 800 meters in the spectacular time of 1:39.3-5 in the Paris trials and "Chesky" Jules Ladoumègue, who has beaten the record for the 1500 meters.

After struggling on the soft practice track near the unfinished Olympic Stadium for several days without once getting a satisfactory workout, the American runners huddled and jumpers were herded together today by Head Coach Lawson Robertson for a flying trip and hopes of a real workout at the Hague.

CONSIDER FUEL FROM PRODUCTS OF BIGGER FARM

Scientists See Gasoline
Made from Surplus of Farms

Evanston, Ill., July 25—(AP)—If the earth's supply of gasoline is to be exhausted, there is no reason why all fuel should not be made from agricultural waste products, Dr. O. E. Sweeney, head of the chemical engineering department of Iowa State College, Ames, told the Institute of Chemistry here today.

Dr. Sweeney made this statement referring to a liquid known as "furfural" produced at Cedar Rapids, Ia., from oat hulls. More than three hundred compounds, he said, all of commercial value, have been produced at Iowa State, and about $2,500,000 has been invested in the agricultural waste business.

"Furfural at nine cents a pound," he said, "is not as inviting as gasoline at three cents, but there is little doubt that furfural will become cheaper as gasoline becomes more expensive. At present there is a strong probability that the residue from furfural can be made into activated charcoal, which sells for a high price, or ordinary charcoal."

Describing other commodities made from waste products, Dr. Sweeney told of the uses of corn stalks, from which silk stockings, and substitutes for paper mache and lumber are now made.

"Making silk stockings from corn stalks has attracted considerable attention," he said, "yet chemists know it is not difficult. The cellulose of corn stalks is more easily hydrolyzed than wood, and while the yield is somewhat lower, quality is probably better."

Dr. Sweeney suggested as a means to absorb surplus population of farms, that factories be evenly distributed throughout the food producing regions, in which the surplus labor could be employed without emigrating to cities.

"There is something wrong with a country," he said, "that tends to have its population segregated in large cities, especially when the cities are far removed from the food supply. When a manufacturer seeks a site he goes to a large city, because the population is there. Thus we have a vicious cycle of people going to the city because the factories are there, and factories going to the cities because the people are there."

"If this continues, the bulk of our population will soon be segregated in the seaboard cities, while the food producing regions will be devoid of population except for enough people to produce our food supplies, and the area best able to support the population will not have it."

and Emmet Drew, Pat Blackburn and Lewis Long bought about 35 head which they resold in this vicinity.

Douglas Considine, who spent several weeks in New York came Friday evening to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Considine.

COOLIDGE SHOWS HIS SKILL AS A LAKE FISHERMAN

President Angles Late and Brings in Nice
Bass String

Superior, Wis., July 25—(AP)—Breaking into new fishing grounds, President Coolidge has proved his worth as an angler in the open waters of Wisconsin lakes.

With Mrs. Coolidge, his guide and secret service men as his only audience, the Chief Executive abandoned the Brule river late yesterday and in an expedition which lasted till after sunset traveled 20 miles in quest of bass on Island Lake.

Forsaking his regular dinner hour and breaking all precedent, Mr. Coolidge stayed on the water till darkness counseled return to Cedar Island Lodge, but not before he could boast of a catch of ten bass.

After working till late yesterday afternoon, President Coolidge invited Mrs. Coolidge to go with him and watch him try his luck on Island Lake. With little notice to his aides the expedition was organized and Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge started in their car for the lake.

They embarked in canoes at a landing half hidden in the foliage of overhanging trees.

For two hours, until 8:15 o'clock, Mr. Coolidge cast continuously and tirelessly. The lake bass were game, although plentiful, and Mr. Coolidge had to resort to all the science he has acquired in his intensive fishing experience this summer to land them.

Darkness and the chill of the evening recalled Mr. Coolidge to the necessity of interrupting his sport. Saying that ten bass would do for one day, he gave the signal for the return.

THE SKIN

There are many shades of color to the human skin, and our place in society and the effect of our appearance upon other human beings is largely dependent upon our skin. A Hotentot or an Eskimo might be as intelligent and well educated as a white man, but he would never be accorded as high a position in white society.

There is much truth in the saying that beauty is only skin deep. But the skin serves purposes other than camouflaging our muscles and bones. It is a protective covering of the body, keeping out many dangerous germs, insects and poisons, and retaining the fluids and minerals that are essential to life.

The skin is also an organ of feeling, since most of our nerves of touch end in or immediately under the skin. It regulates the temperature of the body so that when we are too warm moisture is thrown off and, by the process of evaporation, keeps the body cool. The skin also conserves the heat of the body by driving the blood away from the surface into the inner organs that must be kept warm to preserve life. The skin assists the lungs and kidneys to excrete water containing various toxic waste products, which are so poisonous, that if they are retained, would produce death within a very short time.

There are two main divisions to the skin, an outer tough coating called the epidermis, and the inner softer layer, rich in blood vessels and nerves which is known as the derma or true skin. The epidermis or outer layer consists mostly of dead cells which are continually forced out from the inside. Since the only growing cells of the outer layer to the skin are located internally, near the dermis, these divide and force the older cells outwardly where they in time scale off.

Whenever an unusual pressure comes on the skin such as occurs on the soles of the feet or in the palms of the hands, the epidermal cells multiply with a great rapidity and produce an abnormal thickening. If the pressure occurs on a limited area as sometimes happens when a tight shoe is worn, a little mound of epidermal cells is built up which we call a corn or callous. This may be removed by various methods, but will always recur unless the pressure that caused the growth is removed.

A wart is a place where some irritating acid from the blood has gathered which causes the epidermal cells to grow and multiply much more rapidly than is normal. Cancer seems to be caused in much the same manner, and may occur either in the epidermal cells or in the connective tissues which bind the body together.

QUESTION: Mrs. G. H. asks: "Will you please tell me what foods, if any, contain iodine?"

ANSWER: The following foods contain the largest amount of iodine: Asparagus, pineapple, cabbage, kidney beans, mushrooms, carrots, strawberries, shrimp, and other shell fish.

QUESTION: M. K. H. writes: "My husband has been ill with heart trouble for nearly a year—leaky valve. The heart specialist ordered complete rest, but he has insisted on taking two treatments a week from an osteopath, and his improvement has been very slow. Would not such treatment force the blood through the heart as rapidly as any other form of exercise?"

ANSWER: Your husband will never be cured of heart trouble as long as he uses the "complete rest" treatment. Osteopathic treatments will surely be helpful to him, but he must get up and walk around several times daily in order to properly exercise the heart muscles. His diet should be very limited, and care must be used to preclude any possibility of flatulence. Exercises should be taken while lying in bed, and the walking increased each day in order to develop the strength which is needed to overcome any heart derangement.

HAM SWINDLER AT WORK NEAR THIS LOCALITY

Worked Sterling Family—Said to Have Been Working Here

Another specie of swindler is at work in this vicinity, as evidences in the following from the Sterling Gazette, and Dixonites are warned against him:

The latest scheme of swindling was perpetrated in Sterling a few days ago. Offering some "wonderful sugar cured hams from the Martin farm near Dixon at a very low price," the salesman called at a number of homes here.

An example of how he duped one family into buying two hams which he represented to weigh about 12 pounds each, for which $12.50 was collected, but which really weighed about three pounds each and were nothing more than hams worth a little more than a dollar, furnishes another reason why the caution against peddlers should be heeded.

Stopping at a home where the husband and wife were both away, the salesman told the maid that he was delivering two hams that the lady of the house had ordered from him several weeks ago. When the maid informed the man that she did not have any money to pay for them, the salesman asked where the man of the house worked, which information was readily given.

Leaving the hams at the home, the salesman hurried to the office of the man at whose home the hams had been left, to collect for them.

"I have just left two sugar cured hams at your house," the salesman declared to the man from whom he expected to get his money. "They are fine big hams, each weighing about 12 pounds; sugar cured on the Martin farm near Dixon. Your wife ordered them from me several weeks ago."

Telephoning to his home, the office man inquired of the maid if two hams had been delivered there. She replied that a man had brought them to the house not more than five minutes previously. Believing this to be sufficient to verify the statements of the salesman, the office man wrote a check for $12.50.

General Obregon at the Banquet

In the very hour of celebrating his election as president of Mexico with a banquet at Cafe La Bombilla, Alvaro Obregon was shot to death by a fanatic. The arrow points to Obregon at the festal board shortly before the assassination. Note the decorations in his honor. This picture was delayed in transmission because the photographer who took it was placed in jail after the assassination.

Not more than five minutes elapsed when the office man received a call from his wife, inquiring if he had ordered two hams sent to the house.

"No, didn't you order them," he replied.

It was not until he was informed by his wife that she had not ordered any hams that the office man began to think that he had been swindled. He immediately called up the bank to stop payment on the check, but he was too late—the sharper had been there a few minutes before, cashed the check and carried away the money.

The swindler was described as a Jew of short stature. He was accompanied by another man and two girls, all of whom were riding in a Buick sedan with an Iowa license plate.

Dixon People Fooled

It is reported that some weeks ago peddlers sold "fine, home cured hams" which were supposed to have been cured in Nachusa, to unsuspecting housewives. The hams turned out to be shouldered and were packing house products from some place in Iowa.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BETTY LOU WARD married ROD RYER, who had previously been engaged to LILA MARSH. The only shadow on the bride's happiness is Lila's persistence in broadcasting to their friends that she was Rod's first love.

A position in New York is offered Rod by TOM FRASER and he accepts. Anxious to make a good impression, they live in an expensive hotel while looking for an apartment and Betty Lou finds it hard to resist when MOLLY FRASER urges her to buy more than she can afford. Lila visits Molly and meets a rich MR. LORE.

Lila surprises them by marrying Loree, and she asks Betty Lou to forgive the past and be friends. Betty Lou agrees, but when she finds out that Betty Lou is in a position to inherit a large sum of money, she changes her mind and decides to stay with Rod.

The door was open and Lila called to him in greeting as he reached the landing. "Good of you to bother to bring them yourself," she thanked him when he handed her the jewel case.

If someone had told him at this moment that Lila was a dangerous enchantress he would have swept the assertion aside. To him she was a benefactress, and a devoted wife to her wealthy husband. His uneasiness dispelled, Rod made no objection when she said they would go down and have a cocktail.

"Wait until I put on my necklace," she added and started to open the case.

"Let me," Rod offered and Lila handed him a small key.

The key stuck a bit in the lock. Rod asked if the lock was out of order. Lila said no and held out her hand. Rod returned the key to her.

"I don't want the bracelets tonight," she said, fussing with the lock, "but since you didn't have a key to the case . . ."

Her words broke off abruptly. The case was empty!

FOR one devastating moment Rod was without a thought. Then the full import of the empty case burst upon him.

"They're gone!" It was the merest whisper in which Lila uttered the words.

Rod turned to her with the dawning of a solution in his mind. "Maybe you didn't put them in the case," he said hopefully.

Lila nodded emphatically. "Yes, I did. There's no question about that."

"Then they've been stolen," he said slowly, reluctantly.

"But how could they?" Lila cried, apparently recovering from the numbing shock of the discovery. "You didn't let anyone else have them, did you, Rod?"

"No, of course not," he answered. "My God, Lila, don't you see how it looks for me?"

"What do you mean?" she asked, in a small, strained voice that echoed his own emotion. Rod could see that she harbored a frightening thought.

"You know," he said more quietly. "I am responsible for them. The safe wasn't robbed. There were other articles of value in it. A safe, then we can't take this mess to the police."

Rod stared at her. "Wait until you've had a chance to inspect the safe," she went on. "Perhaps it was tampered with."

Rod started to speak. "I know," Lila interrupted him, "you said nothing else was stolen. That means . . . well, we've got to face it, Rod. It means that some people at least are going to suspect you."

"I know that," Rod admitted.

Rod moved nervously and glanced at the telephone. Lila pushed it farther away.

"Rod, listen," she burst out suddenly. "Cy mustn't know about this. I asked him to help you to Bertie Lou's sake. I was sincere and that satisfied him, but he knows about . . . about us. That was all right, too. But don't you see? If you can't prove your innocence you'll be under suspicion. And you know human nature. I'm not saying he will, but Cy might turn against you."

"Think of what you would lose through no fault of your own." She paused and Rod asked her why she didn't believe he had stolen the jewels.

"Oh, rot," she returned impatiently. "I'm not a complete fool. And I got you into this."

"Lila, you're a thoroughbred, but I'd be a fine kind of cur to let you protect me."

"Now wait a minute," Lila hurried on. "I'm thinking of myself. I boosted you with Cy.

"Why go through all that? Let's get a private detective. I know one. Investigate before you go rushing into a cloud of suspicion. If we can find out who took the jewels before Cy learns about the theft you will be saved a lot of sorrow. It's worth a try."

Rod grimaced. "I'd rather take a chance on Cy giving me a break."

Lila shrugged. "I know Cy better than you do. In some ways he's bigger than any man I know but in others he's . . . well, he's got a queer streak. Rod. He's untrustworthy about some things. If I entered his head that you had robbed him he would send you to the penitentiary if he could, no matter how warm your friendship had been."

Rod winced. "But he's got to know," he said dully.

"No, he hasn't. No one has to know. I've got a string of pearls just like the genuine and copies of the bracelets. They're very good, too. No one will know the difference."

"If we lose time trying to catch the thief ourselves you may never

GERMANY'S EYE ON AMERICA FOR BETTER EXAMPLE

Former Local Minister
Spoke to Kiwanis
Club Tuesday

"The eyes of Germany today are upon the United States," Dr. T. F. Dornblaser, former pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, who is in this country for an extended visit, told members of the Dixon Kiwanis Club at their regular meeting Tuesday noon where he was the guest speaker.

"Germany is planning a government similar to the United States and they are closely observing our movements and progress. The prohibition movement is being seriously considered and some of the larger cities in Berlin prohibit the drinking of alcoholic beverages. The local option move, which was the forerunner of prohibition in America, is being strongly stressed. Germany, however, is spending more money at the present time for liquor and tobacco than would be required to pay their reparations.

"It is safer to walk upon the streets of Berlin or Potsdam after midnight than it is to appear on the streets of Chicago or New York City at the same hour," the speaker said. "In Germany there is no such banditry as is existent in this country. There is a higher regard for human life. Lives are taken among the political parties but the bold banditry and robbery of which we read on our American papers is not practiced in Germany. There is on every hand, a high respect for age and grey hair.

U. S. Influence Great

"The people of Germany are well satisfied with the absence of the Kaiser and the example of America is a great influence in Germany. There are many political factions in the Reichstag and women play an important part in its political life. "Personally, I have the highest regard for President Von Hindenberg and for him I hold the highest admiration. Hindenberg in Germany, has performed the same service to his country that General Grant performed in the United States. It was upon his advice that the Kaiser left Germany and went to Holland. Next to Von Hindenberg, Stresemann is the strongest leader in Germany today. There is not a spirit in Germany to want another war, but its people want peace.

"The Germans look upon us of the United States as dollar worshippers and many of the young men who are anxious to come to this country actually believe that money can be scooped out of the streets. I have been engaged during the past seven years in instructing young men in the study of the English language. I am training a large class of these, and all of them are anxious to come to America. I have impressed upon each of them the importance of learning the English language before entering the country. I have told them that success is theirs only by hard work in their professions, and that the wealth which they hope to find, will come only by their own efforts."

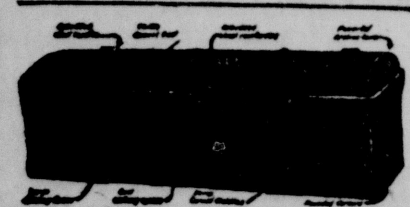

Dr. Dornblaser's talk was very interesting and in closing his remarks, he spoke of his many happy associations while a resident of Dixon and expressed a desire to spend his declining days in this city.

Who's Who in Dogdom—No. 7

Pomeranian Is Favorite Pet of the Fair Sex

The Pomeranian is a big favorite with the fair sex.

While it isn't generally known, early Poms weighed from 20 to 30 pounds and were used on the continent as shepherd and watch dogs.

Not until 1891 was real progress made in the development of the breed. Five years later it was decided that the weight limit of the Pom for show purposes should not be more than 20 pounds.

By 1900, through careful breeding, the weight was lowered to 10 pounds without losing type. The first small dog to be a show sensation was "Miss de Pass," which weighed five pounds. Three pounds is not an uncommon weight for a Pom in these days but most breeders prefer a dog weighing a pound or two more.

The color of the first small Poms was either black or white. The beautiful blacks are now very scarce. They once predominated. So are the browns, decidedly popular about 20 years ago.

The craze at present in Poms is for clear golden orange color. The orange shaded sable also retains much of its popularity. In the great demand for these two, the other colors are being sadly neglected.

Wise and Devoted

The Pomeranian is a highly intelligent breed, noted for its devotion to its owner. He stands out as a house dog and can be taught almost any trick, through a little patience and effort on the part of its owner.

The Pom by many is regarded as a noisy dog, an incessant barker. This is not a type. The Pomeranian can be as quiet as any other dog. It is all a matter of training. The yappy Pom is now the exception. When he exists, the blame can be charged to the owner for humoring him as a puppy. Despite the Pom's small size, the breed is hardy and healthy, easy to condition and long lived.

Many Scholars to Have Part in Book

Chicago, July 25—(AP)—Thirty recognized philosophic scholars of English, French, German, Russian and Scandinavian countries have responded to the request of Edward Leroy Schaub, professor of philosophy in Northwestern University and editor of "The Monist", philosophical quarterly published here, and are represented in his compilation of "Philosophy Today" just published.

Professor Schaub solicited from these scholars, he said, "surveys covering the main fields of philosophy especially cultivated by various linguistic groups since about the outbreak of the Great War." He himself contributed to the Contemporary English section of the book, the chapter on "Interpretations of Religion."

Another Illinoisan, Seymour Guy Martin of Evanston wrote another section, entitled "History of Philosophy."

"We are today witnessing," Professor Schaub writes in his particular section of the book, "intense activity on the part of a group who refer to themselves as fundamentalists. Despite psychological science, they insist that we possess truths that in no wise reflect human insight or personal-social experience, but that have emanated directly from the mind of a transcendent God as a pure revelation to man.

"But whereas the conflict between fundamentalism and the various forms of liberalism, including experimentalism rages only on the arena of life, there is today another controversy that occupies also the forum of scientific debate, namely, the issue between theism and a certain type of humanism."

"Theism grows out of experience of dependence and ineptitude and involves attitudes of faith, trust, worship and reverence toward the most real being, the 'Determiner of Destiny'; the humanism in question construing theism as a lingering survival of antiquated views, identifies religion with social idealism, and, metaphysically, with meliorism."

Decorative but Dumb

by
H. A. MANGES

Many a man who doesn't believe that stork story any longer, just goes haywire when it comes to buying tires.

He stands there listening closely while the dealer avows he is giving him something for nothing. For the time being what protrudes above his collar is decorative but dumb.

If you believe a dealer will spend time and energy trying to sell you at no profit, you probably will never call upon me.

But if you believe in good goods at fair prices, backed by responsibility, you'll drop in and see what I have to offer.

I hold out no inducement but a square deal—square to you and square to me. I sell Goodyear Tires because they're the best in the world, and I price them as low as I can and still meet the payroll and feed the family. How low is this? Low enough to give you the cheapest mileage you ever had.

ANOTHER GREAT HIT FROM "OUR DICK"

RICHARD BARTHELMESS

WHEEL OF CHANCE

With MARGARETE LIVINGSTON
A First National Picture

"Wonderful" cried the critics when they saw "The Patent Leather Kid." "Marvelous" shouted the fans after his unforgettable performance in "The Noose" but—you'll have to look for new superlatives to describe his two great characterizations in "The Wheel of Chance." One of the most fascinating stories in years—only Fannie Hurst could write so daringly of life—only Richard Barthelmess could give it such realism, such feeling, such bigness. Life is a gamble—but "The Wheel of Chance" is a sure bet—one of the best pictures of the month.
